Land Use and Lake Reflections

Call for Papers

The Oregon Lakes Association invites you to submit proposals for presentations at our 2010 Annual Meeting and Conference. We will meet this year in the heart of the Willamette Valley, where agricultural, urban and forestry land uses coexist and exert unique pressures on aquatic systems. How can we measure land use effects on lakes? How do lakes respond to different land uses? How does lake quality vary across Oregon and how do Oregon lakes fare nationally? What are new tools for measuring lakes' response to human and natural inputs? What watershed restoration projects have affected lakes? Please send your submissions by August 6 to (kfontwilliams@gmail.com). We will let you know if your presentation is accepted by August 18.
